Saint Louis, Missouri—Sister Cities International has awarded a two-year, $115,000 grant to Saint Louis Missouri – Senegal Sister Cities to perform projects that address sanitation, health, and water issues in urban areas of Africa. This project is funded by a $7.5 million grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

"This Sister Cities International program represents a major effort to address fundamental needs of citizens of urban areas in Africa," said Patrick Madden, President and CEO, Sister Cities International. "These sister cities represent some of the strongest partnerships between the U.S. and Africa and will become the measure of how cities can help each other and leave an enduring legacy in tangible ways."

The 17 grant recipients were selected by an independent panel of five experts in the areas of sister city relationships, aid administration, and international development. The other recipients include:

"We are proud to be part of the second phase of the Sister Cities International's Africa Urban Poverty Alleviation Program. "With this grant we hope to alleviate the physical and financial suffering associated with the diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of Type 2 diabetes and gestational diabetes. As advocates for behavioral change, our project seeks to support economically disadvantaged women in identified neighborhoods of Saint-Louis Senegal. Women (especially pregnant women) experience significant difficulties in accessing affordable quality healthcare. Healthier women make healthier families and healthier societies. Our project will lessen some of the burdens of illness and increase the value of life by lending a helping hand to women living in poverty so that they can achieve self-sufficiency,” says Renee Franklin, President, Saint Louis Missouri – Senegal Sister Cities.

About Sister Cities International

Sister Cities International is the only U.S.-based organization dedicated to creating long-term city-to-city relationships between communities in the U.S. and abroad. Created by U.S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956 at a White House summit, the organization is a leader in people-to-people exchanges with a network that boasts over 650 U.S. cities with more than 2,000 sister city relationships in 136 countries on six continents. Currently, the organization has 124 partnerships in 36 countries in Africa.

About AUPAP

Africa Urban Poverty Alleviation Program (AUPAP) is a three-year project to alleviate poverty in 25 African cities through water, sanitation, and health initiatives led by U.S. and African sister city programs. U.S. sister city programs will collaborate with their African counterparts to identify and address the most critical problems in these sectors, which form a barrier to sustained development in urban areas.

The sister cities network will capitalize on local members’ technical and professional expertise; links to city government, academia, nonprofits, and the private sector; and the long-term, people-to-people relationships they have developed over time to create projects that are both technically sound and based at the grass-roots level. Sister Cities International will also gather a group of international development experts to aid in the planning and execution of the projects.
